Electronic address: zlus@zlus.si

Association of Slovenian Adult Education Centres (ASAEC) is a voluntary, non-governmental, non-profit organization of adult education centres in Slovenia, established in 1959.

Throughout the years of its activity, it has been an important professional and strategic partner of the state authorities and professional institutions preparing lifelong learning strategies. It plays a significant role in adult education development, in introducing the findings of andragogy into practice as well as in quality system development in the field of adult education. It covers the entire area of the Republic of Slovenia.

Adult Education Centres – the members of ASAEC – are educational, advisory, promotional, motivational, development and information centres. The activities of each are aimed at their well-known local environment, where they have established partner networks. Networking and knowing the environment well enables them to consider all environmental specialities. Therefore they successfully adapt their activities to the educational needs of their communities.

They strive to make adult education accessible under the same conditions as well as in the same scope on the national level. As the sole public institution established for adult education, they are bound to guarantee quality and strive for high professional standards.

In 2016, they joined the network of chosen applicants for two large projects, financed by the European Social Fund (ESF) and the Ministry of Education, Science and Sport. These were the project for acquisition of basic and vocational competences (2016–2019) and the project of informing and advising, and of identifying and evaluating of non-formally acquired knowledge (2016–2022). This time, adult education centres are oriented to less educated employees and to a more intensive cooperation with companies as well as staff development services. They offer free advising on possibilities of education and learning as well as numerous free educational programmes (e.g. IT, foreign languages, personal growth, professional or working post knowledge).

Intergenerational Learning Centres

Knowledge is the biggest and the most valuable treasure enabling us to live fully and actively in all life periods. Via intergenerational learning centres, adult education centres strive to provide life-long learning and intergenerational cooperation. At the same time and on the basis of knowledge and skills acquisition, they try to actively include vulnerable groups of adults like the Roma, drop-outs, prison inmates, migrants and the elderly into life. More than 110,000 participants are included in various programmes of all adult education centres every year.

Adult Education Centre Postojna has successfully provided lifelong learning in the Primorsko-Notranjska region since 1960.

Besides carrying out formal educational programmes and national vocational qualifications, it builds its recognisability on the basis of workshops and courses. It updates educational forms and contents as a response to social and economic changes. In this manner, it enables the adults of different generations to acquire new knowledge and skills for active participation in modern society. With development of free support services in adult education, it ensures successful progress toward knowledge acquisition.

Its success is based on the interlinking of its long, rich tradition and introduction of modern programmes and approaches. An important part of its prosperity is also its successful collaboration with other educational and developmental organizations. This kind of professional and strategic partner networks enable the centre to offer individuals willing to learn and develop the best way to reach their goals.

With participation in national and European projects, it enables vulnerable groups greater education accessibility and equal learning possibilities for all, thus bringing its motto "Let knowledge grow!" to life.
